 The cover of 'Hattie &amp; Hudson' features a young girl in a red canoe on a lake. A large, green, tentacle-like creature is reaching out from the water towards her. The title 'Hattie &amp; Hudson' is written in a yellow, serif font.	By Chris Van Dusen Young Hattie McFadden loves nothing more than paddling her red canoe as she explores the lake near her home. One morning, her joyful singing catches the attention of a mysterious, green lake creature, who surfaces, terrifying everyone on the lake. Sensing friendliness despite his enormous size, Hattie returns later and establishes a rapport with the monster, whom she dubs Hudson. When the townsfolk decide to capture the leviathan, Hudson and Hattie concoct a plan to demonstrate his kindness and value to the community. Copyright 2018 Booklist Reviews.
 The cover of 'Do Not Bring Your Dragon to the Library' shows a young boy standing next to a large, red, scaly dragon. The dragon is breathing fire. The title is written in a bold, white, sans-serif font.	By Julie Gassman &amp; Andy Elkerton Have you ever thought about bringing your dragon to the library? Don't do it! In rhyming couplets, a bunch of kids bring their individual dragons (six in all) to the library, and unsurprisingly, they break all the behavior rules. Copyright Kirkus 2016
 The cover of 'Mouseling's Words' shows a small mouse sitting on a nest made of words and signs. The title 'Mouseling's Words' is written in a playful, colorful font.	By Shutta Crum &amp; Ryan O'Rourke Mouseling's family lives in a nest filled with words gleaned from restaurant menus, labels, signs, and packaging. This little mouse narrator feels safe there, whispering and touching the words. When all the rest of the brood leaves to go out in the wide world, Mouseling just wants to stay, until wise Aunt Tillie tells of all the new words that might be found outside the nest. Prudence looks and acts like any other cow, but in reality, she's only a part-time pasture resident. A lifelong reader, she is also a scientist and architect, and she peruses the pages of Bovine Engineering in her spare time. The rest of the cows don't see her as "normal" and certainly NOT "part of the herd." Copyright 2017 School Library Journal.

Sarabella is always thinking—conjuring, daydreaming, and creating new worlds from her imagination. There is so much going on in her head that it can barely be contained. But there are times when daydreaming is decidedly not a good thing—like when you're supposed to be doing multiplication tables. Luckily, Sarabella has an understanding teacher and with his encouragement She comes up with her own idea to show everyone who she is.

The catawampus cat walks with a slant. And his skewed point of view has everyone in town looking at everything with fresh eyes. Even Bushy Brows Billiam who never notices anything, including what time class is over, spots the catawampus cat, and now he's a star student! And when the town librarian sees the catawampus cat, she pulls the "wrong" book from the shelf, sending her into a life of adventure. The catawampus cat is in town and everything is about to change.
